Ola Maciejewska (Poland)

Born in Poland, Ola Maciejewska is a young choreographer and performer who lives and works in Paris. At the age of eight, she left her hometown to receive classical training of the National Ballet School of Bytom, where she graduated in 2000. The same year, she left Poland for the Netherlands and joined the Rotterdam Dance Academy, then studied dramaturgy at the University of Utrecht where she obtained a masters in 2012. She has

Mélanie Perrier – Compagnie 2minimum

©Erik Houllier

After a decade working on performance, gestures and images, Mélanie Perrier's encounter with dance naturally led her, little by little, into staging choreographic works. She creates perceptual experiences, approaching choreography through the relationship that exists between movement, light and music. She founded Compagnie 2minimum in 2010. Her productions include: Partitions de Promenades (2009), a choreographic partition for a group and a duet in alternative space, Imminence (2012-2013); Nos charmes n'auront pas suffi (2014), Pas de contact sans écart (2014), Lâche (2015), Quelque chose est en train de se passer (2016), a performance for 15 dancers in a museum space, and CARE (2016), which she will present in 2017 in Caen. She is an associate artist with the CCN de Caen en Normandie and a companion artist at the Manège - scène nationale de Reims.

Jérôme Combier – Ensemble Cairn

© Gaëlle Belot

Jérôme Combier was born in the greater Paris area on 17/7/71, a symmetrical day. He decided late, at the age of 19, to learn music and began studying musicology at the University of Saint-Denis. He also studied guitar with Antonio Membrado, but the encounter with Hacène Larbi naturally shifted his focus to writing, analysis and orchestration. He turned definitively to composition in 1997 when he became the student of Emmanuelle Nunes at the Conservatoire de Paris (CNSM). In 1995, he was a finalist at the Griegselskalpet composition competition in Norway, which finally convinced him of this vocation. This was also the occasion of his very first trip abroad. For two years, from 2002 to 2004, with the support of the Conservatoire de Paris, he undertook a teaching and directorial role in Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan at the conservatories of Tashkent and Almaty, then, the following year, benefitted from a residency at the Villa Medici. During his residency he met Raphaël Thierry who was to create the visual installations for the Vies silencieuses cycle written for the Cairn ensemble, and the writer Sylvain Coher, with whom he imagined the opera Hypothèse autour du grand amour. In the villages of the Sabina area outside Rome, he participated, alongside the visual artist Xavier Noiret-Thomé, in the “20 eventi” exhibition sponsored at that time by Guiseppe Penone.

Jérôme Combier is the director of the Cairn Ensemble, which he founded in the late 90s. He is a teacher in sound and musical creation at the Ecole Nationale Supérieure de Paris-Cergy.

With her own company 2nd nature she has created choreographic productions that have been performed in Austria, as part of the ImPulsTanz festival and Tanzquartier Wien, and internationally. She works with contemporary music composers: Sacre Material (2000) and Adebar/Kubelka (2003) were created with Max Nagl. From 2004 to 2012 she created the series Trike, working on difference and repetition (Loop-Grammatik).

In collaboration with the composer Bernhard Lang, the scenographer Philipp Harnoncourt and the computer-music designer Winfried Ritsch, she opened the avant-garde festival “Steirischer Herbst” in Graz with Maschinenhalle#1. (2010) As a director, ever since her first staging, Elfriede Jelinek’s Über Tiere, she has examined the tension between body and text. For a number of years, Gaigg worked with a documentary approach on the “staged essay” format: DeSacre! – Les Pussy Riot rencontrent Vaslav Nijinski (2013), Maybe the way you made love twenty years ago is the answer? (2014), and untitled (look, look, come closer), an interpretation of war photography (2015). CLASH (2016), co-produced by the CCN de Caen en Normandie with Max Fossati as performer, takes the terrorist attacks in Orlando in 2016 as its starting point and deals with homophobia and self-hating.

Phia Ménard is the artistic director and a performer with the Non Nova company, which she founded in 1998 with the desire to change the perception, staging and dramaturgy of juggling. Non nova, sed nove (we do not invent anything, we see it differently) is a founding precept. Since October 2011, she has performed her productions L'après-midi d'un foehn and VORTEX, the second part of her "Wind Pieces" series, nationally and internationally.

At CIFAS (International Centre for Training in the Performing Arts) in Brussels, she initiated "In the Mood", a work with the philosopher Paul B. Preciado on the issues of gender and moods. She regularly speaks at conferences on art and gender issues.

3. Executive productions

Executive productions are specific choreographic productions commissioned by the CCN de Caen en Normandie from our associate artists, companion artists or friend artists. They reflect our desire to permeate spaces and territories that are unfamiliar with choreographic practice. Of an extraordinary variety of expressions, they are all-terrain, designed to adapt to all types of spaces, whether community halls, village squares, historical monuments, or the parks and tourist sites of the Calvados, Orne and Manche departments. The compelling idea driving this initiative is that by leaving its designated spaces, dance can reach out to people. By way of example, a production residency in a village or secondary school in the Auge or Bessin areas is planned. The first one is being proposed to Alban Richard, the second will be attributed to another artist in 2019.

These productions were conceived by the CCN to meet the needs of the three partner departments to show, disseminate and attract contemporary choreographic creation to areas far from the urban hubs but also to have works tour all the departments of the region and beyond.

First executive production: Vivace by Alban Richard, March 2018

Second executive production: Herman Diephuis, Autumn 2019
